The Enlightened American

To the Editor of the Daily News—Sir—The enlightened American of the Times, that American Daniel who is always coming to judgment in favor of [illegible]—a person very familiar to every one who knows anything of America I have crossed the Atlantic with him myself He was a wealthy man coming at a time when his country, struggling for her existence demanded the loyal support of her citizens to spend his money in the great pleasure cities of Europe and make himself popular among the rich and privileged by decrying republican institutions and predicting the total failure of the war

The habitat of these men, for the most part is not New England but New York and the great cities of the Border States which have been a good deal under the social influence of the South They are not men of sufficient cultivation to keep their hearts above their wealth They find wealth not sufficiently honored and even deprived of the greatest luxury it can buy—the luxury of ostentation—by a society of which equality is the rule Not a few of them also have been commercially bound up with slavery and of course are hostile to the principles before which slavery has fallen These griefs they pour into sympathizing bosoms here under color of bearing their reluctant testimony against free institutions

These men strange as it may sound are the mob leaders of the United States They subsidise and organize the Irishry of New York They were the "most respectable citizens" who led the anti slavery riots at Boston The Conservatives in a republic of equal rights are the great mass of the people The revolutionists are the uneducated rich and the slaveowners, with the Irish following at their heels

Yes, there are many enemies of republicanism in the American Republic They are enemies of republicanism not of universal suffrage—imperialists at heart and friends of slavery If the South could have made itself an empire or an oligarchy by itself and set up a standing army, we should soon have seen this party stretching out a hand to it from the North

That the conditions of society in one of the free states of America is happier and sounder, though less highly cultivated than it is here, is a fact as to which I can scarcely imagine the existence of two opinions among those who have been accustomed to study society in the interest of all its members and not in the interest of a class There is abundance of evil in those communities, which as well as the good has been stirred up and brought to the surface by struggle through which they have just passed But on the whole, in a social point of view they are the leading shoots of humanity, and show the direction in which human society generally will advance

Our eyes are also fixed on Washington But Washington is the worst, not the best, part of the American Republic I should think the prospects of the Republic very gloomy at this moment if its destinies were in the hands of the professional politicians, but they are in the hands of the American people The framers of the Constitution made as I am convinced a great mistake in attempting to superadd a National Legislature to a Federal Union Not in the central but in the local institutions of America you must look for that which is at once truly American and eminently sound If the issue of the struggle which is now commencing should be a return from the mixed federative and Legislative Union to one purely federative my belief is that this would be a most happy result.

With regard to the special question of the suffrage, however, we ought to be very cautious in reasoning from the case of America to our own That which makes universal suffrage at once salutary and inevitable in America is the general diffusion of property or the hope of property and of education The Irishry, whom we pour from a misgoverned Ireland into the seaboard cities, are in every case a hideous exception The best and most highly cultivated men with whom I conversed in America were firm believers in universal suffrage and resolute against disfranchising, even if it were possible, the Irish emigrants or any other class of men, however unfitted, in their actual condition, for the exercise of political power They held that the principle of equal rights on which the Republic was founded was too vital to be compromised by exceptions, and that the only way of making a man a good citizen was to make him a citizen Probably they are right in refusing to attempt a retrograde step, but in taking a great step forward other considerations come in

On the other hand, an extended suffrage in America labors under some special difficulties owing to the looseness of the social tissue, and the absence of natural leaders and rallying points in a community which is not only receiving annual crowds of emigrants but is internally in a state of constant migration This makes the American constituencies too like those of our metropolitan boroughs where there is little unity of feeling and few obvious candidates, and where consequently 'wire-pullers' exercise a very noxious power In most English constituencies society is very settled, men know each other well, and there are natural leaders and natural rallying points in abundance

Nor must it be forgotten that, if free political institutions in America are based upon social equity they also generate the social equity on which they are based Our only path to popular education and a more equal diffusion of property through the political reforms which would take the Government out of the hands of a class and make it truly the Government of the nation

So far as my very limited observations of American politics influenced my opinions about our own, I was confirmed in the conviction that an English statesman, acting in the highest interest of the whole community, would extend the suffrage by gradual steps, keeping the ultimate mark steadily in view, and at the same time taking measures to extend popular education, to open the way for a more equal distribution of property, and above all to release religion by degrees from its present state of strangling confinement and degrading litigation and enable it to exert its full power in making good citizens as well as good men

Unhappily this course, which probably most reformers would on calm consideration prefer, is the one which it is practically the most difficult to pursue Under the county suffrage and the small boroughs a class is entrenched in power the continued ascendency of which is incompatible with the progress of the community and the well being of the people but which will scarcely be induced to resign its power and give place to a national government except under the pressure of a movement involving some of the evils of a revolution.

A letter from New Orleans says that among the consequences of the recent riot in that city are the stoppage of emigration from European countries to Louisiana and the threatened removal of several millions of Northern capital invested there, the gentlemen owning it having become alarmed at what they conceive is an indurated opposition to Northern men generally and Radicals in particular.

Henry Ward Beecher

The New York Nation of October 26th has an article reviewing Beecher's late course, from which the following is an extract

We venture to think that an explanation of Beecher's somewhat erratic course of late may be found in the fact that he has, since the close of the war, mingled more intimately with Southern and conservative politicians than in all his life before He has realized the difficulty which we comprehend perfectly by experience of talking face to face with educated kindly, Christian men from the South who express the humanest sentiments concerning the colored race and yet inflexibly oppose the admission of that race to the elective franchise It is exceedingly hard to look such a man in the eye and say in effect, "I would trust you with my fortune, my family, my honor, my life, but not with the negro" That is just what our amiable Northern Congressmen never could say in old times, and because they could not and did not Beecher stormed at them with all his fiery eloquence But then he was not called upon to say it himself Now he is, and he finds the words stick in his throat We do not denounce him for this, for we can do no better ourselves Our only chance is to avoid these amiable Southern gentlemen Which of us could meet Governor Eyre face to face, spend an hour with him in friendly intercourse and conclude by telling him that he was a murderer, who avenged an old grudge by assassination under the forms of law? No, no We should close the interview by warmly shaking the Governor's hand and subscribing to "the great assassin's defense fund, and so would Beecher It is an old story repeated a thousand times every year since the world began Only one exception is recorded—that in which, while forty camels were being unloaded of gifts at his door, the man of God fixed his eyes upon the Syrian soldier and wept, saying "I know the evil that thou wilt do unto the children of Israel their strongholds wilt thou set on fire and their young men wilt thou slay with the sword, and wilt dash their children and rip up their women with child"

We are glad to welcome Beecher back to the fold from which in spite of his opinion to the contrary, we cannot but think he has strayed, and we should rejoice far more if he could honestly see and admit that he had erred in judgment throughout this whole matter But we say distinctly, that we respect him no whit the less nay more, for his adherence to his convictions, so long as they are his convictions, in the face of the almost unanimous opposition of this Church, his family and his best friends. We earnestly hope, however, that he will not let his pride prevent him from reconsidering his position in accordance with his better judgment

And as various stories, some wholly false and others grossly exaggerated, have gone out concerning the action or designs of Plymouth Church, it is proper that we should here say a word on that subject, in respect to which we speak on the best authority It is absolutely false that any officers of the church ever spoke, or even thought of reducing Beecher's salary on account of his political position, or that any kind of movement by way of punishing or intimidating him was ever made The profound agitation and grief of the church over the Cleveland letter can scarcely be over stated, but Beecher's people have far too much liberality of sentiment to think for a moment of any such projects as those which sundry "Democratic" newspapers have invented and ascribed to them For a "half-educated," "bigoted," "fanatical" congregation, "with no ideas except what they derived from their pastor," yet having the impertinence to "fancy that they could think for themselves," we think that Plymouth Church has made a good record of itself within the last two months

The experience through which both pastor and people have passed has been a valuable though not a welcome one. It has shown that a church unusually devoted to its pastor can yet maintain its independence of thought, as little swayed by his influence, when exerted on the wrong side, as if he had been the humblest member of his flock It has shown that such a difference of opinion can be maintained without breaking up the ties of mutual affection and esteem And a better vindication of the democratic theory of government, in church and State, when founded on intelligence has rarely been witnessed, than the total failure of so popular, trusted and powerful a leader as Beecher to change the course of one in a hundred of those who, all over the land, have hung upon his words and delighted to act upon his counsels.

Unfounded Rumor of the Assassination of Henry Ward Beecher.

The city clocks had scarcely announced the hour of six yesterday afternoon when a report of the gravest import and the most startling character agitated the whole community. A rumor was circulated with telegraphic rapidity that the eloquent divine of Plymouth Church, the Rev Henry Ward Beecher, had been assassinated The report was relieved by no details of the horrible event, and the people to whom it was announced, seized with awe and wonder, had to satiate their curiosity by taking refuge in a maze of speculations on the origin and cause of the terrible homicide The report created throughout the metropolis a general expression of profound sorrow. In a city of a million of inhabitants, who are regaled daily with truthful sensations and records of bloody deeds a report, false or true, will receive credence and incite comment. The rumor travels from lip to lip, till its source is lost, and it becomes, for the time being, a fact, in the judgment of the populace, till it is declared erroneous Such was the case in relation to the report of Beecher's death, which was, happily without foundation.

The public anxiety to hear some authentic details of the alleged tragedy was excited in many ways All Beecher's friends in this city were sought out for the purpose of ascertaining the cause of the deed, but they were unable to shed any light upon it Aware of the fact that, if the murder had taken place, those in Beecher's mansion in Brooklyn must have been aware of it, hundreds of the admirers of the divine proceeded there, but they discovered that the occupants were in blissful ignorance of the occurrence As each successive group of visitors left the house, they were succeeded by others, till midnight sent the last audience of anxious inquirers to rest.

The report in its travels had many transformations, and at last took a definite shape We will give it as it was narrated to us by one who heard it after it had passed from Harlem to the Battery, and across to the City of Churches

At four o'clock this morning, said our astounded informant, a heavy series of raps were given at the front door of Beecher's house in Peekskill, which had the effect of wakening the whole family Beecher rose from his bed and proceeded down stairs, when he unlocked the door While there he was accosted by a tall and able bodied man who thus addressed him "Are you Beecher?" "Yes, sir" The divine had scarcely uttered the affirmative when the stranger fired, a ball pierced his heart and he fell dead on the threshold of his own house! In a few minutes the family alarmed by the discharge of a pistol, rushed down stairs to the scene of blood, but they were too late Beecher was no more!

"I have also heard," continued our informant, "that while the body of the eloquent minister lay where it first fell, Theodore Tilton, who had just arrived to solicit Beecher's attendance at a great meeting knelt frantically beside the remains and, unconscious that he was addressing a stark corpse, begged forgiveness for his attacks on the departed preacher in the Independent Having ascertained that the lips of his friend were mute forever he found to his horror, that the blood of the dead man was upon his shirt, and he rushed up stairs hastily to the bath room and washed the gory stains from his linen"

"Did you hear anything further?" we asked

"Yes" he replied, "There are a thousand rumors about the murder. I heard a man say he believed Beecher was killed in order that he might die in the Republican faith!"

Our informant then left to repeat this story to others

In order to make assurance doubly sure our reporter visited Beecher's house in Brooklyn and the Hudson River Railroad depot and found that the report was a heartless falsehood In addition we received a dispatch from Peekskill stating that the rumor was happily unfounded —N Y H Oct 26

The Daily Oregonian.

THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 29, 1866.

A PROCLAMATION
For a Day of Public Thanksgiving and Praise.

WHEREAS, ANDREW JOHNSON, President of the United States of America, has, by Proclamation, set apart Thursday, the 29th day of November, A. D. 1866, as a day to be observed for Public Thanksgiving and Praise throughout the Republic—

Now, therefore, I, GEO L. WOODS, Governor of the State of Oregon, do, by this my Proclamation, call upon all good citizens of this State to properly observe said day. Lifting our hearts and voices to the Lord God, let all the people of Oregon unite with the whole body of their countrymen, and swell the chorus of a Nation's gratitude.

Let us consecrate ourselves anew to Liberty and to God.

If we have suffered the horrors of Civil War—if we have had desolated homes, and the wail of orphans and widows' tears, we have a Country's honor preserved, a Nation redeemed, and the inalienable rights of man established.

Peace is upon all our borders, the laws are enforced, and order prevails.

As a Nation, we have abundant reason for gratitude to Almighty God for all these blessings vouchsafed to us. Let all the people, therefore, give praise unto His Holy Name, ever remembering that "the Lord remaineth a King forever," and that He holdeth the destinies of the Nations in His hands.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the Seal of the State of Oregon to be affixed. Done at Salem, this 13th day of November, A. D. 1866.

GEO. L. WOODS.

By the Governor:

SAMUEL E. MAY, Sec'y of State.

A New Expedient.

From the news which comes to hand it would appear that there is a serious dispute between our Government and the French Emperor in regard to the embarkation of the French troops from Mexico. Napoleon, it is reported, declines to commence withdrawing his troops by detatchments and at once, as he agreed to do; but wishes to delay recalling them for some months to come. Seward seems to have mustered up spirit enough to refuse to accede to this proposal, and a sharp correspondence is going on between the Foreign Offices of the two countries. The Administration having failed utterly in its domestic policy, it is evidently seeking by a show of vigor upon the Mexican question to retrive some of its errors and regain popular favor. Had Johnson power to declare war against France, he probably would not hesitate to do it, believing that in this way he could obtain a complete triumph over his opponents at home. In case of a war with a foreign power he would expect to have the rebels immediately admitted into Congress. He would expect that a foreign war would at once compel their admission—because the country, divided against itself, could not successfully carry on a great war with a distant nation. Probably he thinks that if our relations with France should become critical, Congress would, to avert the danger, give up its position and allow his domestic policy to be consummated. As there is now no more reason for a rupture with France on the Mexican question than there has been for a long time past, the activity and boldness of the Administration in regard to the matter may, and doubtless does, proceed from a desire on the part of the President to gain a triumph over the party that defeated his plans in the late elections. Seward's brusque language to the French Minister is intended for his political adversaries at home. This dispute with France, at this late day, is only another expedient to revive "my policy." However earnest Seward and Johnson may appear in regard to Mexico, it is impossible for anybody to believe them honest in the purpose they profess.

A RELIABLE ORGAN.—On the 13th inst. the Herald devoted its leading article to the San Francisco Flag, favoring its readers with the information that that journal was "dead." An obituary was published, consisting of a furious diatribe against the Flag and its editor,—the Herald man evidently thinking it quite safe to attack a "dead organ." But we are puzzled to know how he got his information that the Flag was "dead," as we have been receiving that paper regularly ever since its obituary appeared in the Herald. We have the Flag of the 19th inst., and find it in about the same state of health as usual. So here's another powerful leader completely demolished. Very reliable organ is the Herald, under its hired man's management.

AT IT AGAIN.—The brilliant young man of the Statesman, who has been silent for some time, has broke out again. Here is the evidence:

"The best and bravest of the land are hunted down by these frothing hell-hounds of fanaticism, who come like fiends from the pit, red with conflagration, and shouted with lurid flame, to bring fresh disaster and death among us."

This fine frenzy is worthy to have been borrowed from the Bowery theater, and seems to be an imitation of Sylvanus Cobb. We do not think the most exacting reader would ask us to quote further.

On the 17th inst. Gov. Seymour, of British Columbia, published a proclamation declaring that by virtue of an act of Parliament, passed on the 6th of August, 1866, the colony of Vancouver Island is united with the colony of British Columbia, and that the two colonies shall hereafter form one colony, with the name of British Columbia.

A LARGE FLEET OF BOATS.—On October 6th there were at Buffalo, New York, a fleet of 730 canal boats, waiting to go East through the Erie Canal. This enormous fleet, carrying upwards of 5,000,000 bushels of grain, was to move through the canal in a single day.

We tremble, says an exchange, for the husbands of fashionable wives next summer. Ristori has made her appearance in New York with 150 trunks! Of course, shoddy and petroleum are not going to be out-done by an actress.

Conservative white men are a minority of the voters of the country, and are beginning to court the company of conservative "niggers," hoping to get a majority.

A late dispatch says the Arkansas Legislature has referred the Constitutional amendment to a committee, and that it will act on the subject with great deliberation.

Union men are of opinion that they are as good as rebels, and therefore are determined to have at least equal privileges of representation in Congress.

STATE ITEMS.

The Unionist learns from one of the members of the German colony at Aurora, on French Prairie, that the main body left in Missouri, are expected soon to come here and join them. During the war they were situated in the midst of the troubles, and suffered much during its continuance. This induces them to move to Oregon, where their associates have long been settled and perfectly satisfied. The coming emigration will bring an accession to the wealth and increase the number of our German friends to fifteen hundred, and more sociable and worthy inhabitants cannot easily be found.

The number of scholars enrolled in the District School at Salem is 198.

The Statesman learns by a private letter from Hon. Quincy A. Brooks, Special Postal Agent at San Francisco, that he is making an effort to have the printed portion of the mail that belongs north of the Calapooia mountains, sent by steamer during the winter months from San Francisco to Portland. We wish Mr. Brooks success as it would prove a great benefit to the people, as it is impossible to carry the mail such a distance in open wagons, through constant rain without getting it wet and the roads get so muddy that the stage company cannot run their heavy coaches.

The following in relation to Grande Ronde valley is an extract from a letter written by Rev. J. Dillon, and published in the Advocate: "This valley, from which I have just returned, is a sink in the Blue mountains, or if you please a great underground 'corral,' with high fencing of Blue mountains all around it. Here and there is a place you may climb out in, provided you have some pluck and energy, and it requires some at this season of year, for the tops of this high fencing all around, were pretty well painted with snow; and, that, let me tell you, looked a little more refreshing at the distance of you webfooters, than it actually is to one who has just climbed to the top of it."

The Unionist has information that a party of Oregonians has been organized to go on a prospecting tour to Ecuador, in South America. The names of the prospectors are M. M. McKean, late of Grant county, Geo. McKean, S. Marcy and H. Warren. A number of the citizens of Grant county are interested in the enterprise. The party are all experienced miners. Mr. Marcy was in the region they design exploring last year, and found some rich specimens, which he brought with him to Oregon. He is sanguine that he can find rich and extensive mines, both placer and quartz lodes.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—The Eastern line is still down east of Julesburg.

The telegraph rumor of the shipwreck of Saturday evening near Pigeon Point proves to have been true. The British bark Coya, of Liverpool, was approaching this port under heavy sail, the captain supposing himself near Farralone, the weather having been thick the two previous days, when she struck at seven o'clock on Pigeon Point, sixty miles south of this point. Walter Cooper, one of the three saved, arrived in this city last night. He describes the scene after she struck as terrible in the extreme. An attempt was made to launch the long boat but she was instantly swamped by waves which were constantly breaking over her. The Captain and officers did all in their power to save passengers but all to no purpose. No boat could live in such a sea. It was evident to all on board that the only hope of being saved was in clinging to pieces of the wreck. Cooper had on only his underskirt, drawers and cravat when he reached shore and the others were equally as scantily clothed. They were nearly benumbed with cold and crawled out of reach of the waves with great difficulty. In order to protect themselves from the cold they dug a hole in the sand and the three survivors crowded into it covering themselves over with bushes, where they remained until morning when they found their whereabouts a mile from the wreck. Only one body, that of Mrs. Jeffries, had washed ashore. When Cooper left, the hull of the vessel had entirely broken up and disappeared while the beach was strewn with fragments.

List of Passengers of Bark Coya.

Dr. Rawson and wife, London; Mr. Jeffries, wife and baby, Portsmouth; Geo. Byron, Sydney; Miss Lusatta, Napa Valley; Mrs. Pearson, Mrs. Page and daughter. The following is a list of the crew of the Coya: Capt. R. Page; Thomas Braston, first mate; Wm. Carr, second mate; Jas. Skeelon, sail maker; Frank Bashby, carpenter; John Smith, steward; Jas. ———, cook, name unknown; John Smith, Tom Smith, Walter Cooper, P. McNamara, P. Bromery, John Bones, Geo. Owen, John Cooper, Oliver Loeb, Peter Johnson, Peter Shidmens, seamen. Saved: Geo. Byron, passenger, Sydney; Thomas Branston, first mate; Walter Cooper, seaman.

Condrey & Co., of this city, were the consignees of the Coya. A party was sent down by them to render assistance to any survivors of the wreck who may be found, and to look after the bodies and effects of the drowned passengers and crew, which may reach land. The ship being of iron and laden with coal, a very small part of the wreck besides the spars, will be likely to reach the shore.

At 3 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in a large fine building on Petrero, occupied by Fisbuck, tallow chandler and soap maker, and Scoville & Co., candle makers. The entire building was owned by S. B. Whipple, valued at $80,000. Fisbuck estimates his loss at $100,000, $25,000 insurance. Scoville & Co. estimate their loss at $20,000, and no insurance. A number of Chinamen were at work and the fires of the factories were kept going day and night. The fire is supposed to be the result of carelessness. The Board of Supervisors have decided without a dissenting vote to stand by their order for the preservation of public health in the matter of swill milk.

Gaston de Artois has commenced suit in the 14th District Court against the Alta California newspaper to recover $27,000 damages for an alleged libel in regard to the seizure of the brig Basco by de Artois and his party off Point St. Lucas, in which plaintiff is designated as a pirate and robber, etc.

A protest against the passage of an order allowing saloons where women and girls are employed, to keep open until 2 A. M., was presented to the Board of Supervisors signed by Judges, public officers, merchants, professional and business citizens generally. The number of signatures appended was over 1000.

Jos. Smith, who was accused of the murder of Michael Hines, has been held to answer for manslaughter; bail $2,000.

Peter McGuire, charged with biting off the lip of J. C. Black, waived an examination in public court, and has been held to answer before the Grand Jury; bail $1,000.

The case of de Artois vs. others, charged with libel on complaint of John Urmy, came up yesterday, when the defense moved for continuance and a commission to take the testimony of Gen. Vega and others in Mexico. Prosecution desired to proceed, and denied the right of a commission to take testimony on a preliminary examination. The point argued by counsel was taken under advisement.

COUGHS.—As a soothing Pectoral Brown's Bronchial Troches are advantageously employed to alleviate Coughs, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, and Bronchial affections. Those exposed to sudden changes of weather should have them, as they can be carried in the pocket, and taken as occasion requires upon the first appearance of a cold or cough.

At the earliest symptom of a cough or cold take Newell's Pulmonary Syrup. Use it FREELY and it may prevent worse consequences.

THE SPHINX.—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL, 83 First street, (Postoffice Block) have just received information that by an imperial order, artists are engaged in taking photographic views of the Egyptian Sphinx, the Pyramids and other relics of antiquity. Of course the firm are not geographically situated to obtain views of existing monuments of that wonderful people who flourished three thousand years before the Christian era, but they are fully able to execute the most BEAUTIFUL PICTURES of the human face and form. SUN PEARLS, CARDS and all other styles taken in any kind of weather.

ANDREW JOHNSON'S POLICY is creating a great excitement among politicians, but the people in general follow that policy which is most to their benefit, therefore buy all their Clothing, Boots, Shoes, etc., at the St. Louis store No. 111 Front street, which KOHN & FISHEL sell at such extreme low prices, it being their policy to please the most fastidious.

Consumption like the Rattle-Snake, always gives warning of its approach. A hacking cough, dull pain in the chest, difficulty of breathing, are the indications that there is more or less irritation of the Lungs. If this be neglected, and go on until pustules are formed, followed by tubercles, which sometimes eat off the blood vessels, Death will be the result. ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will heal all the irritated parts, allay the inflammation, removing the phlegm and matter. Thus stopping the cough and prevent fatal Consumption. Report of the Grand Jury.—On the 27th the Grand Jury made the following report:

To the Honorable Circuit Court of Multnomah county:

The undersigned, Grand Jurors for the November term, beg leave to make the following report: We have carefully passed upon all matters brought before us. We have found 21 true bills—3 for gambling, 7 for larceny and 11 for keeping open Sundays, to the Court. We have examined the county jail and found it in most excellent condition. We also visited the County Hospital and by invitation, the several wards of the Insane Asylum, with which it is connected. We found all the several departments in the most satisfactory condition, the buildings large and commodious, well ventilated, and provided with the best modern appliances for the health and comfort of the inmates; and we most heartily commend the institution and its enterprising proprietors to the confidence of the people. In the Hospital are 14 patients, 12 males and 2 females, all of whom expressed their entire satisfaction with the care and treatment. Of the insane, there are 85; 65 males and 23 females, all neat and cleanly, and apparently provided for in the best manner.

A brief examination of the Probate records discloses much to cause distrust and alarm in the public mind. The statute of September, 1862, requiring all matters of accounts rendered by administrators and guardians to be recorded in books described for that purpose, with accompanying balance sheets, has not been complied with. Consequently, all the existing evidence is to be found in the original papers on file, should any of which be abstracted, mislaid or lost in any way, no complete record could be made; or if any such loss has already occurred, nothing but the most careful examination and comparison can show the extent of the damage sustained. Demanding an investigation, and consequent perfecting of the records as the statute contemplates, of the greatest importance, and that a Grand Jury could scarcely be expected to accomplish it in connection with their other business, being a limited session. We would recommend the appointment of a special commission for that purpose, or the adoption of other efficient means to secure the object. We would call the attention of the Court to the fact that words spoken in the Grand Jury room, are clearly heard in the witness room adjoining—through the [illegible]. And we now beg to be discharged.

J. S. DICKINSON, Foreman; J. Loryea, Clerk; Wm. [illegible]; Chas. W. Snooks, Gideon Tibbets, Marcellus Bogue.

From Astoria.—Through the kindness of a gentleman who arrived by the Couch on Tuesday evening from Astoria, we are enabled to give the following items of news from that place: The new Episcopal Church will be ready for occupancy in a few weeks. The members contemplate giving a festival soon, the proceeds of which will go toward finishing the building. The architecture is purely Gothic, and when completed will make the finest appearance of any structure of the kind in the place...... The [illegible] had not yet proceeded to sea on account of Easterly winds......Two hundred and fifty barrels of salmon were shipped to San Francisco by the last Montana......The schooner Champion was wrecked a few days since, on the breakers at Tillamook Bay......A large brewery is being erected, and will commence operations as soon as the machinery arrives from San Francisco......The Lodge of Good Templars is making commendable progress, new accessions being frequently added to their ranks......The new tannery of Linenwieber & Clark, at the upper town, is constructed in the best modern style, at a cost of about $10,000. They will be ready to manufacture and ship leather about the first of January......Judge Olney's new business block is completed, and presents the most imposing appearance of any business house in the place......The Montana company contemplate building a new wharf at the foot of Main street for the accommodation of its steamships, and Judge Olney is now in San Francisco negotiating with the company on the subject.

"Improvements."—The Walla Walla Statesman of the 24th speaks of the erection of a house in Walla Walla to be used as a hurdy-gurdy saloon, as one of the "improvements" in that place. There is no accounting for tastes. The old lady who kissed her cow probably preferred the bovine smack to any of the homo article within the circle of her acquaintance. The cow might have been the most loving animal with which the venerable female was on terms of intimacy, or it may have been that the tastes of the dame were wofully depraved. If the opening of a hurdy-gurdy saloon will be an "improvement" over anything heretofore established at Walla Walla, the place must be in a lamentable condition of morals. Else, the city has been wofully slandered by the Statesman editor, and he has made a sad exhibition of his bad taste. Judging from the "improving" influences of the hurdy-gurdy establishments in Portland, and assuming that they are no better in Walla Walla than here, we incline to the opinion that the most of the Walla Wallans will fail to see the editor's "improvements" in the same light with him.

[illegible].—The usual crowd of drays, hacks, &c., met the wharf yesterday, upon the arrival of the Alert, and remained for some time while the soldiers were being transferred to her from the Troup. When the Alert blew her first whistle for starting, the greater number of horses at the wharf seemed to be suddenly inspired with the idea that it was time for them to start, also, and start they did, in a regular stampede. Five or six, attached to drays went up the incline at their best speed, but only two got away. Of these, one was caught very soon, but the other went up Morrison street, and after him went a [illegible] detective on foot. Horse put in his best licks, but the dray was an impediment. Volunteer put in his best licks, and, having no dray attached to him, he could put 'em in faster and longer. Horse was overtaken in a [illegible] state, and ignominiously brought back. No damage done.

Circuit Court—Shattuck Judge.—Wednesday's proceedings were as follows: Margaret E. Jackson vs. Early Jackson; suit for divorce on ground of cruel and inhuman treatment—decree of divorce granted.

First National Bank of Portland vs. John Bruce; suit to recover on promissory note for $236 26—judgment for plaintiff.

Harry Swift was admitted to citizenship, on the testimony of Patrick Gill and Thos. Hartness.

State of Oregon vs. Harry Swift; indictment for larceny of money from Mrs. Anna Lambert—tried by jury and acquitted.

State of Oregon vs. Jim He Kee; indictment for larceny of clothing from Levy's store—jury failed to agree and were discharged.

Wm. M. Wallace vs. J. A. Henderson, action on account for the proceeds of sale of mining claims, horses, &c., $[illegible]—verdict for plaintiff.

Troops for Fort Klamath.—Capt. Kelly, of the 8th U. S. Cavalry, came over with his company, "C," yesterday on the Fannie Troup and took passage on the Alert for Oregon City, en route to Fort Klamath. The command consists of two officers—Capt. Kelly and 1st Lt. [illegible] of the 14th U. S. Infantry—and fifty-six men, with sixty horses. The Captain will go by boat to Eugene, and thence march to Fort Klamath. We thought the company to be a fine one, consisting almost entirely of young, active looking men. They are well mounted, too, and will no doubt do good service in their new field of operations. Gen. Steele has acted wisely in selecting Capt. Kelly for the command in South-eastern Oregon, that being his old stamping ground. He knows thoroughly the country in which he will operate.

The Examination of Wilson.—The examination of Wilson, Monday, in the case of the State vs. Harry Swift, indicted for grand larceny, served to expose quite a series of criminal transactions and may yet be the means of bringing several parties to justice, who are now at large. Taken with other known facts, it fixed, pretty certainly, upon Mrs. Lambert a knowledge, at least, of her husband's guilt in the robbery of Thomas E. Elves in 1865, and upon John Mack, the robbery of Mrs. Lambert and a conspiracy and perjury to convict Harry Swift of that crime. We are not able, for the want of room, to give in detail Wilson's evidence. It is probable that legal steps will be taken in the premises, against all the persons implicated.

No Paper To-morrow.—Printers, after all, are but human, with human stomachs, human flesh, blood and bones, and human weaknesses for chickens, turkeys, and the numerous etceteras that are just as much a part of Thanksgiving day as Thanksgiving day itself. In consideration of that fact—a fact that we have for years been familiar with, though other people cannot all see it—we shall issue no paper to-morrow. We have a bone or two to pick, and will have no time to devote to newspaper work. We intend to be happy. The printers intend to be happy. If our patrons can't be happy one day without their morning OREGONIAN, we are sorry for them, and all the happier for ourselves. But look out for Saturday.

[illegible].—The bridge on Front street at the corner of Jefferson was dismantled of its planking, yesterday, so that only foot passengers could cross. Teams have to pass the ravine now, on First street. The depth of mud on that street above the terminus of the Nicolson paving, is something fearful to contemplate, when it is remembered that it must be for a considerable time the only road in and out of, or into, the city in that direction. It is nearly hub deep now in places, and the heavy mists that fall every day will not serve to make it any less.

Circuit Court—Tuesday.—The proceedings of Tuesday in Circuit Court were left out of yesterday's OREGONIAN, through an error that will not be likely to again occur. They were as follows: A. G. Walling vs. E. Norris—judgment for plaintiff, $804 04......State of Oregon vs. Jim He Kee; indictment for larceny—evidence closed and submitted to jury......Wallace vs. Henderson, civil action submitted......The Grand Jury made its report and was discharged.

Recorder's Court.—When the hour for opening this Court arrived yesterday, it was found that nobody had stolen any chickens or etceteras, nobody had discussed any difference of opinion with an earnestness forbidden by ordinance, nobody had bought anything at Push, Pull & Co's when the owner wasn't in. For twenty-four hours nobody had done anything, so to speak, and so the Recorder did nothing and we came away, having made nothing by going to the court room.

Sale of Real Estate.—Oscar Kilbourn, auctioneer, will sell on Saturday, on the premises, one of the most desirable pieces of property in this city—opposite the O. S. N. Co.'s wharf. The late improvements in that direction and those which are already in contemplation for the opening of spring, mark the locality as one of the best in the city for investment. See Mr. Kilbourn's advertisement.

Assault and Battery.—Harry Lambert, of Clackamas county, a few days since, had a row with Robt. Potter, in which the latter committed an assault and battery upon the former, and being brought before a judicial functionary was compelled to pay $30 fine and costs of suit.

To be Mustered out.—Capt. Kelly, who is on his way to Fort Klamath, goes with authority and instructions to muster out of service Capt. Sprague's company of Oregon Infantry, the last of the Oregon troops. He has discretion to discharge them at Fort Klamath or march them down to Jacksonville and muster them out there. He will probably give Capt. Sprague his choice in that matter.

Stirred Up.—The tearing up of the bridge on Front street yesterday, created a good deal of commotion among the business men south of Jefferson street. They complain that they are practically cut off from the rest of the city, so far as business is concerned. It is probable the Council will be petitioned to allow one side of the bridge to remain till the filling of the other side is completed.

Hats.—Everybody who has a "shocking bad hat" should throw it away and go to A. J. Daly & Co. and buy a new one. These gentlemen have just moved into Carter's new building and opened an extensive and entirely new stock of hats, caps, and military goods of the latest styles. Everybody stops to admire their princely display of fine goods.

The Question of Chinese Immigration.—The amateur Ciceros, D. Websters, etc., of Oregon City, in Lyceum assembled, are discussing the policy of encouraging Chinese immigration. We await the issue with some anxiety, because on that question in Portland, where there are plenty of Mongolian heathens, the people are involved in the fogs of doubt.

The Alert.—The P. T. Co.'s steamer Alert has been refitted during the last fall, in the most substantial and comfortable manner, and will on Monday next, take the place of the Senator in the Portland and Oregon City trade. The Alert made a special trip yesterday to take up Capt. Kelly's company of cavalry.

Pay Your Taxes.—Those who owe taxes to the county of Multnomah, had better read Sheriff Stitzel's invitation to call and settle. The thirty days' grace expires December 15th, after which the Sheriff will go after you, at your own expense. Pay up, save costs and you will feel lighter both in pocket and conscience.

The Fair.—The Fair closed last night, with the most gratifying results. The amount of money realized, though not yet footed up, must be large enough to go quite a way toward accomplishing the object in contemplation. We shall be happy to state the results as soon as they are fully known.

Freight by the Senator.—The Senator's freight, yesterday, consisted of 187 boxes apples, 1058 sacks flour, 127 sacks feed, 8 sacks potatoes, 1 saddle, 1 set harness, 1 bale goods, 1 bundle trees, 2 half barrels, 1 sack cabbage, 1 keg soap, 1 tool-chest, and a lot of rags and rope.

The "Badger Lode."—In our notice of the Eagle Creek mines, yesterday, we spoke of the Badger ledge as a copper-bearing ledge. This was an error. The Badger is a gold-bearing ledge, prospecting some $2,800 to the ton.

Broke his Leg.—Frank DeWitt, a merchant of First street, met with a severe accident on Tuesday evening. He was engaged in something of a scuffle with another person, when he fell or was pushed down, and a broken leg was the result.

Deferred.—We are informed that Judge Deady's lecture before the Law Association of this city has been postponed till next week. Due notice will be given.

From Salem.—The Senator brought down from Oregon City, yesterday, a large number of passengers from Salem and other towns up the river.

The Ball.—Remember the ball to-night at Oro Fino Hall, under the management of the ladies of the Catholic Choir.

Barman Bros. have on hand a large assortment of black and fancy Velvet Vests, which are manufactured expressly for them, by the well known firm of Shaffer Bros., of New York.

In selecting a Sewing Machine be sure to combine the ornamental with the useful. A machine which will both sew and embroider is a perpetual delight. The Grover & Baker Machine is perfect in both these respects. This is the only machine which both sews and embroiders. WM. CURRIER & CO., 103 Front street, agents.

CHARTRES COFFEE!

Manufactory Established in June, 1851.

STEAM POWER, NOS. 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.

HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.

The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

Anear to Thee.

So I might walk, what time my life shall last,
Within the shelter of thy tender arms,
I'd waste no thought on all the hurts and harms
Which Fate broadcasts by handfuls thick and fast;
Fortune's capricious heart might never beat
Kindly for me; I'd count her frowns more sweet
Than sweetest smiles, so I might be
Anear to thee, dear love—anear to thee!

So I might lean, what time this pulse shall thrill,
To thy loved name, my weakness on thy strength,
I'd little reck, though many a torturing length
Of Care begirt my feet. In every ill
I'd see, no haunting shade, but budding good;
Pitch golden gleams from Nature's stormiest mood;
Nor even Pain should sting, so I might be
Anear to thee, sweet love—anear to thee!

Since I have hope to meet thee—soon or late—
Up yonder 'mong the paths the angels tread,
Where hearts that erst were hungering fed,
And bruised lives are healed, which fickle Fate
Made footballs of! what need to wail and cry
"We are so far apart, my love and I!"
Why heed for Earth, since I am sure to be Anear to thee in Heaven—anear to thee!

Insanity of the Princess Carlotta.

WHAT CAUSED THE LOSS OF HER REASON.

The accounts received by the European mails of October 13th give the fullest confirmation of the reports regarding the insanity of the Princess Carlotta, wife of Maximilian. However much the people of this country may feel satisfaction at the failure of the Imperial scheme in Mexico, they cannot but deplore the calamity that has befallen a lady eminent for those qualities which befit the most exalted station in society. The case of unhappy Carlotta presents a terrible picture of disappointed ambition. It is well known that when Maximilian hesitated in his resolution to accept the imperial crown of Mexico, his wife's urgent appeals turned the scale in favor of the French Emperor's design. On this point "Malakoff," the Paris correspondent of the New York Times, in his letter of the 12th October, writes as follows:

It is true that it was she (the Empress) more than her husband who was in favor of the quixotic adventure; it was she who determined Maximilian upon trying his fortune in Mexico; but they went there at the invitation and under the powerful protection of the French Government and upon the strength of promises made by Napoleon and the agents of the rebellion. The rebellion has failed, and is, therefore, unable to offer any aid; and now Napoleon also, the principal actor, has failed. The result is, that while there is sympathy felt for the courageous wife of Maximilian, there is none for Napoleon. In fact many people express their opinion of the Emperor's conduct in this business with an energy I would not dare put on paper. The sum total of these expressions may be condensed thus: "He led into a bad scrape a willing and well-meaning young man, who had every title to honorable treatment and then abandoned him." If ever there was a case of violation of the point of honor, it is here. When Marshal Forey returned from Mexico, he told the Emperor and afterwards declared publicly in the Senate, that it would require 50,000 men and a great many years time to accomplish the object for which they went to Mexico. And this was the exact truth. The Marshal understood the question. But how did the Emperor respond to this, and what was his duty in the premises? To fulfill his promises to Maximilian he should have followed out the programme of Marshal Forey, even at the expense of a war with the United States, or he should have instructed Maximilian to at once abdicate. Instead of that, he adopted the extremely undignified policy of allowing the Empire to drag out a miserable existence and to die at last a slow death. By this policy he has allowed every one else connected with the enterprise to lose their dignity, for from Maximilian down, all the backers of the concern have been obliged to puff and blow and falsify, like so many charlatans on the public places trying to get customers for their damaged goods. Even the grand daughter of Louis Philippe has been obliged to come to the Tuileries to humbly beg for aid, and has had to go away without it.

THE STORY OF CARLOTTI'S MISSION TO ROME.

A Paris correspondent of the New York World gives some particulars of Carlotti's career in Mexico, and a narrative of incidents connected with her visit to the Pope illustrative of the distressing circumstances that led to her insanity. Speaking of Maximilian's desperation on finding his credit dishonored, the writer says: He became less a worshipper and more a monarch, and he sequested the chattels of the church. They retorted with menace and conspiracy. The vanity of anticipation fell to poverty in his wife. She reigned in her wifely love alone, and all the loyalty he received came in her beautiful eyes. Stricken in this short dream, her prayers grew more frequent; but now she prayed with doubt, because the holy church in which her assurance lay looked blackly at her. So she said at last: "I will go alone over the ocean, or with some few retainers, to ask help for you from the Emperor, and for both of us forgiveness from the greatest Priest."

The Emperor answered (and in this I speak from information well derived): "No, if it ever becomes necessary for you to quit, then I, also, shall retire."

They made arrangements to give up the land that will never acknowledge them, so long as it lies in the west under the shadow of an orderly and colossal freedom. But Marshal Bazaine said: "To this enterprise you gave yourself. The honor of my master is in it. You shall not go to get him contempt equal to your own. My troops are mine. I will hold you a prisoner in your palace, as Cortes held the Montezuma. You shall stay, although you need not govern."

Then upon the minds of man and wife the terrible deceit that had beguiled them became transparent. They had made themselves spectacles for a sacrifice. And swift and condign upon all this, the power of that Austria they had quitted was stricken down, hurled out of Germany, well nigh out of Europe, made bankrupt, chaotic, inglorious. Ruin and shame looked in on every side. The Empress no longer delayed. She bade her husband good-bye.

GLOOMY FOREBODINGS.

The long and now dangerous journey across the Cordilleras to Vera Cruz was made. It gave the fugitive Charlotte all vague alarms. She took common passage upon a packet steamship paying her fare and that of her friend; and all the way her sleep was broken, and her daylight fancies distressed. She saw enemies in the crew, spies in the passengers, corsairs in every nearing sail. Now she got at her prayers making long supplications; now she railed at the officers with a flushed, indignant face. The girl went out of her; she was an irascible, husbandless, broken woman, conscious of disgrace before, disgrace behind, the loss of riches, the possible denunciation of the Pope. In the midst of the passage the papal gift, her blessed crucifix, was lost or stolen. Then she cried that God was turned against her, and her husband's house. The rest of the trip—nine days—was passed without sleep, almost without food. She spoke no more to any one. Her presence was melancholy to all upon the steamer.

"IT IS USELESS!"

Arrived in France, no welcoming telegrams came, nor any invitations to rest in the palace. Her sudden apparition made the bow-legged usurper who had duped her, uneasy. His wife, a different sort of woman from Charlotte, was for setting out for Biarritz at once. The fugitive woman came to Paris, and stopped like any shoddy American's wife, at the Grand Hotel, even paying for her own chambers. She threw herself at the cold Emperor's feet and begged his assistance to save the throne and honor of her husband. He answered that he had done enough.

"Who," said Napoleon, "loaned me money or men when I took charge of France. Your husband is not the man I believed him, else he could rule without arms."

Returned to her hotel, visited by a few and only formally, the lonely woman began to show the symptoms of a wretched brain. She cried aloud that her enemies meant to stab her. She saw people with daggers on stairs, in alcoves, in the shadow of her bed curtains. She made herself almost obnoxious at the Grand Hotel by the altercations with the stewards, the noisome nature of her nights, the multitude of purposes she meditated and stopped in the achievement. At last she telegraphed this desperate message to Mexico:

"It is useless!"

OTHERDESPAIR.

At Rome the Pope gave her cool welcome. She stopped at the Hotel de Rome. She quarrelled in turn with each of her servants, and screamed, even on the stairway and in the drawing room. People began to perceive that she was demented; some called her a drunken woman. Her brother, the Count of Flanders, telegraphed to her to return to Brussels. She made no answer, seeming to forget his telegram. All this journey to the Holy City was destitute of political object. She wanted her soul cleansed by the Pope's blessing and forgiveness, because, forsooth, her husband had turned certain lazy monks out of their velvet chamber. She saw the Pope, and he talked to her kindly; but he refused to sanction her husband's confiscation of ecclesiastical property. She argued like "Portia," in the Merchant of Venice; but his temporal sovereignty—the pound of flesh—the consistent old gentleman wanted. He flatly at last refused to sanction the acts of Maximilian, and abruptly closed the interview. Then the Archduchess gave herself up to grief. She refused to leave the Palace of the Vatican, and an officer of the Swiss Guard escorted her out of it. That night she made the Hotel de Rome echo with her shrieks. She walked the floor, rang the bells for help, and at daylight fled to the Vatican again, refusing to quit it, calling mankind her enemies, and at last fainting at the feet of the Pope.

This singular scene, probably the last of its sort that the world shall ever see in the Imperial City, spread all over the town, was printed over all Europe. It brought her brother, in person, to her side. She lies now in the chateau of Miramar, making plaintive entreaties for her husband to rejoin her. If he values love more than lands, let him come.

A PHANTOM OF POISON.

Speaking of the conduct of the Princess at the Vatican, after receiving the positive assurance of the Pope's abandonment of Maximilian, a letter from Rome to the Gazette du Midi says:

She went at last one morning at 9 o'clock to the Pope without any previous announcement; she declared to him that she was the object of an atrocious persecution, that there were designs on her life, that an attempt had been made to poison her at the Hotel de Rome, that she did not believe herself safe and could not dine there. The Holy Father received her with quite paternal kindness, tranquilized and reassured her, and ordered that dinner should be served for her in the library of the Vatican, where she passed the rest of the day. In the evening an endeavor was made to get her to return to the hotel, but she refused, constantly repeating that she was followed by assassins, and she even objected to swallowing a glass of water fearing danger. The Pope then ordered an apartment to be prepared for her in his palace, where she passed the night and the following day. She was still there, not being willing to quit the Vatican, imagining that she saw murderers everywhere, ready to take her life. Several foreign ladies were invited to pass the night with her, as she had sent away her ladies of honor, whom she would not allow to come near her. The paroxysm of abberation appears to have been determined by dispatches received that morning.

THE EXCITING CAUSE OF THE PRINCESS' INSANITY.

The Avenir National, of Paris, which was the first journal in the French Capital that had the courage to put in form the rumors which had been for several days in circulation, publishes the following additional particulars relative to the causes of the present unfortunate condition of the Empress Charlotte. It says: "Leaving Mexico soon after the discovery of a plot, the principal adherents to which had their seats in the Council of the Empire, the unfortunate Princess has continued under the impression of this sad episode, which without doubt has contributed in no small degree in shaking her mental faculties. The journey from Mexico to Vera Cruz was rendered disagreeable by a variety of unfortunate incidents, and the sea voyage was quite as unsatisfactory. If the Empress was received with sympathy in Paris, she has none the less completely failed in the mission which she had the courage to charge herself, and she arrived at Rome in a state of nervous excitement which even then caused the most serious inquietudes in her behalf.

In her frequent interviews with the Pope the Empress has given evidence of an exalted mysticism and a feverish piety. She has repeatedly thrown herself at the feet of Pius the Ninth, and implored his protection against the snares with which she believed herself surrounded. In short the character of her insanity is to believe herself continually surrounded by enemies and traitors. She scarcely dares to touch any food which is offered her, and she imagines that even the persons of her suite desire to poison her.

Progress of the War in Paraguay.

[Correspondence of the New York World.]

BUENOS AYRES, September 12.—The marvel of this age is the pertinacity with which the plucky little republic of Paraguay withstands the force by land and sea of the Powers whose territory covers about as much of the surface of the earth as does all Europe. Brazil, by army and navy, the Argentine republic, with a levy for troops, and Uruguay, with every soldier she has, are combined to overthrow Lopez, the President of Paraguay. The effort has taxed the energies of these three nations for more than a year. Immense treasures have been expended, and in the fifteen active months over 80,000 men have been under arms and a small navy of iron-clads have been used by the allies. And Paraguay still lives.

All the world knows that we have been accustomed to make light of Paraguay. No one expected a Paraguayan to fight. He lives in idleness or works per force for the Government; and a cup of native tea and an orange, with a round of roast beef, will be for him princely fare. The tea he will dry himself, the orange is wild and after the hide is taken for commerce the beef is reckoned in the way. A tent of rushes or of rude sticks will be an ample house for him, and as for schools, elections, post offices, these are innovations that do not find adherents among the masses at all.

Among such an inert people one would suppose the President to rule as a kind of patriarch and to sway the whole family by a slowly diffusing but all-powerful law. This is not so. Their rest is a refuge from the atrocities imposed by tyranny. They have so often done and thought wrong, and so often been awfully punished for it, that they make safety and vacuity synonymous.

The President is the hardest working man in the republic. There is no law but his will. The executive power absorbs all the departments, so there is not a bill to be paid nor a letter to be answered that does not pass through his hands. His will is the law of the land. No native can leave the country without his permission, nor can a foreigner settle there without his special consent. One attempting to outwit him in this would suffer sorely for it. No one can marry except as he approves; he may wait for months and then obtain an unfavorable answer. No native can give a party at his house without obtaining permission. Every fact, great and small, is reported to him. No editor's sanctum was ever so finely posted in local events as is the President of Paraguay.

The knowledge is turned to account in the trade of the country. Every immigrant and every visitor must report his name, country, business, goods on hand, ready cash, etc., and when he goes to leave he must do the same, when his balance-sheet is carefully examined. To export specie, one must pay ten per cent. duty, but he may buy native teas, hides, tobacco, timber, etc., whose producer has already paid a heavy duty on it; and thus the trade of the country is increased, and all the silver and gold imported is kept in the country.

Nearly all the fine farms in the country belong to the State, i. e., President, and nearly all the houses of the Capital pay rent directly to him. So his hand is upon all things. It is a hand of power, and, like gravitation, presses equally on all places.

The Congress assembles once in five years, and is allowed to remain in session five days, to examine and pass upon all the acts of the preceding five years; to decree laws and order disbursements. Every proposition ever presented by the President has passed unanimously. These peculiarities have remained unchanged from the days of Francia, and through the life of the second President (? Dictator), Carlos Lopez. This official died September 10, 1862. How did his son become President? Thus: The old man induced Congress to alter the Constitution so that a man may be eligible to the Presidency at thirty-three instead of forty-five. Then they passed a bill allowing him to appoint, by will, one who would serve after him until Congress should be called to elect him legally. This was done. In his will he appointed his son, Francisco Solano. He took the reins of Government, appointed his own brother Commander-in-Chief of the army, and one of his uncles at the head of the priesthood would keep all things in order. The embryo Dictator then convened Congress, in which he presided, and was unanimously elected President for a term of ten years. The young man is much better educated than was his father. He speaks three languages, and has traveled extensively in Europe as Envoy Extraordinary from his father's Government. For these four years of his office he has kept the mines, arsenals, foundries and ship yards filled with European mechanics. European officers are instructors in the army and navy, and hundreds of young men have been trained in hospitals for practical surgery in cases of emergency, and fifty to one hundred young men have always been kept at the best schools in France in order to become physicians, engineers and mechanics of every kind needed for the army or the navy.

In Paraguay every citizen is a soldier, and every soldier is a laborer on the public works. Hence no private person can enter into competition with the Government manufactories. By such help the State farms are made and houses built for his Excellency. They also thus make and repair roads, build churches, fortresses and arsenals; they also carry the mails, cultivate the State lands, and, in fine, do, unpaid, all the work that the supreme will directs. There is abundance of timber and iron, copper, lead and silver, and native cotton for all domestic purposes.

When in 1864 Brazil aided General Flores in his rebellion in Uruguay, Lopez sent a messenger to say that he would not permit it. But Brazil proceeded and carried Flores' rebellion to a successful revolution, and Lopez sent an army to take Matto Grosso, a rich Brazilian province. This he still keeps. When the Argentine Republic refused to give him permission to cross her territory to invade Brazil he began acts of hostility against her at once without notice of declaration of war.

With varied fortune he has carried on this war, first invading this Republic, and then Brazil, and afterwards he retired among his own jungles and swamps, and as soon as the invading army was across the river he has sat down before them, not two thousand yards distant, and there he has remained for four months.

Fort Humaita was for years his father's pride. It is six leagues above the confluence of the Paraguay and Parana rivers. It is at a bend of the river, where the channel is very narrow, and near the fort. Along the bank for fifteen hundred yards the fort extends, and two hundred pieces of cannon can play at once on anything attempting to pass. Below there is a sunken stone-fleet, opposite there are two heavy chains across the river.

About two leagues below this is Fort Curupaiti, with a few guns, but with three lines of defences landwards, and a sunken fleet in the channel.

The Allies entered Paraguay at Fort Itapiru, which they took and now hold; and in the same position taken up four months ago several severe engagements have occurred; every movement has occurred except bare progress and retreat.

There is reason to believe that the Paraguayans are unanimous in this war. There is no turning against their iron rule. So steadfast are they that we have good reason to believe any deserters coming over to be spies. Military rigor is nothing new to them. No fields of theirs lie waste in their absence; no invasion can much damage their possessions; hence they congregate in armies without objection, and, defending their land and stupidly obedient, they dare any danger, and the soldiers of their own accord seldom if ever surrender.

It is believed that Lopez has in camp now 20,000 men, with garrisons at Humaita and at Curupaiti. All along from the Estero Bellaco, where the army now is, to the Capital, there is a system of defense among the passes of the swamps.

For months the Fort Curupaiti has been in the way of further progress of the fleet. On the first of September an effort was made to reduce it. A forest of masts moved up the Paraguay river, and about a league below the fort a masked battery opened on the ships with thirteen well directed guns. All drew off but six iron-clads, which stood in together. All day a terrible and obstinate fire was kept up from river and shore. Once an iron-clad leaving a porthole open received two shells through it, killing ten men. Next morning the firing was resumed. At two o'clock P. M. the ship landed a force to attack by land, and at the same time a torpedo was sent floating with the current toward the fleet. It struck the Rio de Janeiro, the best iron-clad in the navy, and blew her up. She cost $75,000, and it is said had on board three hundred men. The fight went on and the battery of Curuzu fell into Brazilian hands at sundown. The allies report, killed and wounded, 1,000. Loss of Paraguay not yet known. Two bomb vessels were injured, beside the iron-clad. At the last moment the Paraguayans in Fort Curuzu spiked their guns and blew up their magazine. The place was deeply and widely mined, and the mire was great.

Brazil has ordered up 10,000 fresh troops, and this republic is called on for 3,000 more. The forces of the allies now number about 30,000. Two young Americans are making torpedoes for the Paraguayans.

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES, UNDER THE ACT TO EQUALIZE BOUNTIES, APPROVED JULY 28, 1866.

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, September 16, 1866.

1. All applications shall be filed within the period of six months, from the 1st day of October, 1866, and before any payments are made, shall be classified by regiments, battalions, or other separate organizations, and no application filed after that period shall be settled until after the former shall have been paid.

2. No application shall be entertained unless accompanied by the original discharge of the soldier and the affidavit required by the fourteenth section of the Act, and the further affidavit that he has not received, nor is he entitled to receive from the United States, under any laws or regulations prior to the Act of July 28, 1866, more than $100 bounty for any and all military service rendered by him during the late rebellion, over and above the amount therein claimed.

3. All applications for the additional bounty authorized by this Act from surviving soldiers shall be in the form hereinafter prescribed, and the evidence of identity shall be the same as is now required, and applications from the heirs of deceased soldiers shall be in the form now required by the Treasury Department.

4. As soon as the examination of the claims of any regiment, or other independent organization, shall have been properly acted upon the Paymaster General shall take the necessary steps for their prompt payment.

5. A register shall be kept in the Paymaster General's office, and also in the office of the Second Auditor, of all claims presented under the Law, in which the claimants will be classified by regiments, etc. If the claims be allowed, the amount of bounty paid to each will be noted, and if rejected the cause of rejection will be distinctly stated.

6. In the applications for bounty, as required by the third of these rules, the affidavit shall state each and every period of service rendered by the claimant, and also that he never served otherwise than as herein stated.

7. Organizations irregularly in the service of the United States, or called out for special purposes, as State Militia, Home Guards, etc., and not included in the general bounty laws, are not included within the meaning of the Act.

8. Soldiers enlisted for "three years or during the war," who were discharged by reason of the termination of the war, shall be considered as having served out the period of their enlistment, and are entitled to bounty under this Act.

9. The minority of heirs, claimants for bounty under this Act, must be proven to have existed at the date of its passage. Parents shall receive jointly the bounty to which they may be entitled as heirs, unless the father has abandoned the support of his family, in which case it shall be paid to the mother. Non-residence in the United States shall not be a bar to the claim of heirs, who would otherwise legally inherit.

The provisions of the Act exclude from its benefits the following classes:

1. Those who, after serving the full period of their enlistment, were dishonorably discharged at its expiration.
2. Those discharged during enlistment by way of favor or punishment.
3. Those discharged on account of disability contracted in the service, but not occasioned by wounds received "in the line of duty," who shall not have previously served two or three years respectively at the time of discharge.
4. Those discharged on account of disability existing at the time of their enlistment.
5. The heirs of those who have died since their discharge of wounds or disease not contracted in the service and in the line of duty.
6. The surviving soldiers and heirs of deceased soldiers who, under previous laws, have received or are entitled to receive a bounty of more than $100 from the United States.
7. The surviving soldiers, as well as the heirs of deceased soldiers, when such soldiers have bartered, sold, assigned, loaned, transferred, exchanged or given away their final discharge papers, or any interest in the bounty provided by this or any other Act of Congress.
8. The Act of the 28th of July, 1866, creates no right of inheritance beyond those vested by the law under which these heirs received or were entitled to receive the original bounty, and debars certain classes, brothers and sisters of heirs that were entitled to receive the original bounty, from any claim for the additional bounty provided by this Act.

Old Settlers!

BEWARE OF THE RAG-TAKERS, when property is not safe on Block Thirty-seven, between Fifth and Sixth streets, with a good fence six feet high around it. The house that I built in 1851 stands on that Block. The Rag-Takers went in and carried away such things as suited their convenience on Saturday, the 17th November, 1866. After their search of the house and barn there were missing eight pulu pillows, one iron teakettle, one tin teakettle, one skillet, two large dripping pans, blankets, clothing and rags. On Monday, the 19th, I got out a search warrant to search Winehart's Old Brewery. In the search found two pulu pillows on their beds, iron teakettle on their stove, skillet and one dripping pan with their stove furniture. These things and the Rag-Takers were taken to the Recorder's Court by Ward. The evidence taken was what a Splinter of the Law said—calling the house an old shanty, and the things taken nothing but rags, and other language as low as the things his clients took.

SOMETHING NEW!
THE NEW LIGHT!
DANFORD'S
Atmospheric Coal Oil Gas Lamp!

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT OF SOME SORT, IS A UNIversal necessity. A Safe, Cheap and Brilliant one is a Luxury—a luxury only enjoyed heretofore by those who live in large cities where Gas is used. Years of study and much capital have been exhausted in experiments to produce a lamp wherein the ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil could be used without a chimney, and without unpleasant odor while in use. That fruitful source of expense, trouble and annoyance, the chimney, is in DANFORD'S COAL OIL GAS LAMP avoided; it is the most perfect Lamp and will entirely supersede all other Coal Oil Lamps; it is the cheapest artificial light that can be used, yielding the light of an ordinary six foot Gas burner for less than ½ cent per hour, or double the quantity of light of an ordinary Chimney Lamp for one third the cost. It will burn when turned down to a taper-light, ten hours for a cent, is free from smoke, can be carried from room to room and the wind will not blow it out. These LAMPS will be on exhibition and for sale at the Music and Art Gallery of Shanahan & Dufrene, corner of Morrison and First streets.
